Family Receipt Tracker

An idea for discussion — nothing has been built yet, we'd like your thoughts before building anything.

● How it could work

No setup — just photograph the receipt

No bank linking, no manually typing expenses into a spreadsheet

📷

Photograph the receipt

Any store, any currency — just send a photo to the chat bot

🤖

AI reads and sorts it

Store, date, items, total — automatically sorted into categories (food, clothing, household...)

📊

You get the analytics

How much and on what — by week, month, category

● How this differs from bank analytics

Not just another expense tracker

A bank shows "how much you spent on food." Here are three things a bank can't do

Shared family budget

Several people photograph receipts into the same bot — you see the whole family's spending, not just your own card

Warranty and returns — for free

From the same receipt data, the bot reminds you: "this warranty expires in 3 weeks," "you can still return this for 10 more days"

Your own personal inflation

Compared not to general statistics, but to your own purchase history — what's actually gotten more expensive at the stores you shop at

What do you think?

Would this be useful to you and your family?

Which part sounds most interesting — the shared budget, warranty reminders, or price tracking?

What's missing, in your opinion?